MANUAL OF POLICY AND PROCEDURE

SUPPLEMENT
INVESTIGATION DIVISION

REVISED 03/2024

INTRODUCTION

This supplement to the manual of policy and procedure is presented as a matter of information and has been prepared to inform employees assigned to the investigation division about specific practices and policies, as well as the conduct expected from them. While this manual is not intended to be a book of rules and regulations or a contract, it does include some important guidelines which employees assigned to the investigation division should know. Except for the at-will employment provisions, the manual can be amended at any time.

This supplement to the manual of manual of policy and procedure will not answer every question employees may have, nor would the Agency want to restrict the normal question and answer interchange among us. It is in our person-to-person conversations that we can better know each other, express our views, and work together in a harmonious relationship.

No one other than authorized management may alter or modify any of the policies in this supplement. No statement or promise by a supervisor, manager, or designee is to be interpreted as a change in policy, nor will it constitute an agreement with an employee.

Should any provision in this supplement be found to be unenforceable and invalid, such a finding does not invalidate the entire supplement, but only the subject provision. Nothing in this supplement is intended to infringe upon employee rights under Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA) or be incompatible with the NLRA.

We ask that employees assigned to the investigation division read this guide carefully, become familiar with the Agency and our policies, and refer to it whenever questions arise.

CASE MANAGEMENT

Case Management System

The Agency uses an online case management system to track casework, reporting, and expense entries. This system can be accessed online or through a mobile app in the Apple App Store or the Google Play App Store. Access to setup your username and password will be sent to your Agency email address. If you have not been granted access, please contact your supervisor for further details.

Access <https://origin.viewcases.com>
Support <https://support.trackops.com/hc/en-us>

Case Assignments

All casework assigned to an investigator will be located on the case list page from the Trackops dashboard. In the event you are assigned to a case, but do not see the case on your dashboard, contact your case manager.

Report Writing

Investigators are to prepare reports that clearly document the facts and activities of an investigation. Reports are expected to be clear and concise in order to produce reports that are easily understandable to clients, law enforcement agencies, the court, and attorneys. Reports will be reviewed for spelling, grammatical errors, and content prior to being approved for dissemination to clients. Reports that are found having errors will be declined and a notification email will be sent to your Agency email.

<https://support.trackops.com/hc/en-us/articles/212338103-Case-Updates-Communicating-with-your-Clients-and-Staff>

Investigator reporting is the primary method in which we communicate with Agency clients. Timely reporting is a necessary function not only from a client relations standpoint, but from an Agency profitability aspect as well.

Investigators must document all work, however slight, with an expense entry and report entry / update.

Investigators are expected to have reports / updates for casework submitted by the end of the following workday in which the investigation was conducted. Urgent reporting situations may exist and will be indicated by a case manager or supervision. Extensions must be approved by a supervisor.

It is vital that reports are grammatically correct and the word picture from the investigator is clear. A copy of The Elements of Style by William Strunk Jr. and E.B. White is located in the equipment locker in Room 1951 and can be referenced for any grammatical issues. For further details on writing practices, reference the CA POST course on investigative report writing learning domain 18 located at <https://origininvestigations.com/internal/training/post/>.

While everyone has different nuances in the style of writing that they utilize, the following are some of the uniform expectations when preparing a report.

- All times are an approximation and in the military time format (12/01/2023 at approximately 2200 hours)
- All reports will be written in first person and past tense
- Use of slang or profanity is not to be used unless it is a direct quote from an involved party
- When identifying persons in the narrative of a report, the first instance will have the persons full first and last name. Any time after the initial reference, the person will be referenced by their last name, unless there are multiple people with the same name. In this case, all subsequent references will have the first initial and the last name.
- All work from a single workday for each case will be submitted into the investigation management system as a single narrative report. Multiple days of work are not to be submitted in one narrative entry.
- Reports that are collaborative with other investigators require an individual report from each investigator annotating their own actions. A short summary of the actions of other investigators may be referenced by the lead investigator in their report, but be concise and cautious not to describe the actions in too much detail. After summarizing the actions of another investigator, reference their report as follows (See Investigator Name's supplemental report for further details)

Subjects

Subjects in the Agency's case management system are people, places, and assets that are of investigative value during casework. All relevant subjects in a case are expected to be identified and added to the system and to have complete information.

Expense Entries

All billable hours and expenses for a case that has been worked will be entered onto the Agency case management system by the end of the same workday in which the investigation/work was conducted.

Investigators must document all work, however slight, with an expense entry and report entry / update.

For casework outside of Los Angeles County, CA, travel time is always billed separately. Only the travel time to the location is billed and no travel time should be billed while at the assigned location. For example, if you take a 3-hour flight to Seattle, WA and work for 8 hours one day and 6 hours the next day, then take a return 3-hour flight to Los Angeles, CA, you would log 6 hours of travel time and 14 hours of investigative time.

Certain clients require that travel time is entered separately, and the notes completed with specific terminology. The assigned case manager will advise you of specific client policies.

Mileage

Mileage will always be billed as the distance from the Agency's office (515 S. Flower Street Los Angeles, CA 90071) to the field investigation location. However, if you traveled by air to a location, the mileage billed is that which is driven at that location during the investigation.

Mileage is entered as part of an expense entry in the case management system if you are using a personal vehicle or Agency rental vehicle. Mileage is only reimbursed when using a personal vehicle.

Per Diem

DOCUMENT MANAGEMENT

Some casework may be provided to investigators in a case file folder prepared by Agency analysts. While the expectation is that the file will be comprehensive, it is the assigned primary investigator's responsibility to review the case file for accuracy and content prior to conducting fieldwork. File folders contain confidential information and are not to be shared with anyone other than Agency members who are assigned to the casework and members of management. Investigators are expected to maintain the file folder in a secure location at all times, until the completion of the investigation. At the conclusion of the investigation, investigators shall return the case file folder to the analyst who prepared the file.

DATA ACCESS

The Agency uses several sources for data. Our primary source is Clear and secondary sources are Tracers and IMVRS/Datalink. Clear is to be used for all primary searches except Automated License Plate Recognition (ALPR) and certain state DMV records. ALPR data is accessed through Tracers and DMV records are available through all three sources, with the notable exception of California, which is only available through IMVRS/Datalink. A chart of state DMV availability is available on the Agency's internal portal.

Investigators are required to know Agency policies surrounding the use of the data systems provided as investigative resources. Agency resources provide investigators access to sensitive information, including detailed personal information, in-depth criminal history, nation-wide department of motor vehicle records, etc. As such, to maintain access to these resources, it is Agency policy that investigators exercise unwavering good judgement and good faith when accessing systems.

Use of data systems are subject to frequent and irregular audits by members of management and by data providers. It is Agency policy that all queries submitted through Agency data systems must meet the following two-prong standard. The investigator must have the right to know and the need to know. Review the following scenarios to better understand this standard.

Scenario 1

An investigator is having a reoccurring issue with a neighbor parking in front of his driveway, but he does not know which neighbor it is. The investigator reports for duty the next morning and runs the plate of the vehicle through agency resources to find out who the vehicle belongs to. In this case the investigator has the right to know because he is on duty as an investigator, but does not have the need to know and as a result is a violation of policy. The plate is not associated with assigned casework or agencies needs, but instead is for personal reasons.

Scenario 2

An investigator is working several long shifts and is struggling to keep up with the reports associated. The investigator is too tired to run the names of the subjects for the case he is working the next day. Instead of running them himself, he asks his spouse to run the names for him through agency resources. In this case the investigator has the need to know, but because the person accessing the system does not have the right to know, this is a violation of policy.

Scenario 3

An investigator is tasked with serving a hard to locate subject with a subpoena. The investigator conducts an in-depth background on the subject during working hours and locates a new address. In this case the investigator has both the need to know and the right to know.

Access to the data systems are an integral part in an investigator's basic ability to function as an investigator. Loss of access to agency resources as a result of poor judgement or bad decisions may result in disciplinary action and/or termination of employment.

EQUIPMENT

Investigators have access to many different types of equipment to assist in fieldwork. Equipment is located at the locker in the report writing room located at 515 S. Flower Street, Room 1951. Investigators are issued the following equipment to be kept on their person or readily accessible daily:

- Agency Identification Card
- Agency Business Cards
- Sonim Phone/Radio
- Transcend Bodycam
- Sony ICD-UX570 Audio Recorder

Investigators who identify equipment that would be effective additions to fieldwork are encouraged to submit a request to a supervisor outlining the benefits of the equipment.

UNIFORM AND APPEARANCE

Investigators working undercover assignments are permitted to wear clothing appropriate for the assignment.

COMMUNICATION

Microsoft 365

Investigators are provided with an agency email and full access to all applications through Microsoft 365. Investigators are expected to utilize Outlook daily to obtain important agency wide updates.

Microsoft Teams

Microsoft Teams is the formal method of communication for investigators and administrative staff. Investigators needing assistance while in the field or providing updates on casework are encouraged to utilize Microsoft Teams as a primary method of communication. Investigators are expected to have Microsoft Teams installed on their work computer and on their personal mobile phones. The Microsoft Teams application provides investigators with an agency phone number, that not only makes it convenient to contact clients or other agency staff, but also protects the confidentiality of the investigator's personal phone number. Microsoft Teams can also be used to record audio and video interviews conducted through the conferencing system. At this time, the agency phone number does not send or receive text messages to numbers outside of the Agency.

Sonim Phone/Radio

Investigators are issued a Sonim Phone/Radio. This device is an instantaneous method of communication between investigators in the field, analysts, case managers, and supervisors. Investigators are required to have their radio charged, turned-on, and on their person during work hours.
